

Rental minimum standards

Everybody deserves to live in a safe and secure home. As a rental provider, you're required by law to ensure your property meets the mandatory minimum standards at the time it's advertised or before you offer to lease it to a renter.

Minimum standards fall into 15 categories. Check these off the list below before you let a renter move into the property.

Minimum standards checklist

Inspect these items in your rental property to make sure it meets minimum standards. If it doesn't, you can ask your rental provider to make repairs or changes before signing the agreement or before you move in.

Bathroom

A property's bathroom must have a sink, a shower or bath, and hot and cold water.

Showers must have a shower head with a 3-star water efficiency rating. If a 3-star shower head can't be installed, for example because of the property's age, then a shower head with a 1- or 2-star rating is acceptable.

Electrical safety

Rental properties must have modern switchboards with circuit breakers and electrical safety switches. Rental providers must hire an electrician to check this.

Heating

There must be a fixed heater in the main living area that's in good working order. For rental agreements starting from March 2023, this heater should be energy efficient. If an existing heater isn't energy efficient, the rental provider must upgrade it.

Under the standards, an energy-efficient fixed heater is either:

- a non-ducted air conditioner or heat pump with a 2-star or above energy rating
- a gas space heater with a 2-star or above energy rating
- a ducted heating or hydronic heating system with an outlet in the main living area
- a domestic solid fuel-burning appliance, such as a fireplace or wood-burning stove.

Kitchen

The property must have a kitchen with:

- a cooking and food preparation area
- a sink in good working order connected to hot and cold water
- a stovetop in good working order that has two or more burners.

If there's an oven, it must be in good working order.

Laundry

If there's a laundry, you must ensure it's connected to a reasonable supply of hot and cold water.

Lighting

Interior rooms, corridors and hallways must have access to working lights. The property must have natural light during the day. This can include light coming from other rooms. At night, there should be access to artificial light.

Locks

External entry doors (other than screen doors) must have functional deadlocks or locks that people can unlock with a key from the outside. These must be able to open without a key from the inside.

Mould and damp

All rooms must be free from mould and damp caused by or related to the building structure.

Structural soundness

The property must be structurally sound and weatherproof.

Toilets

The toilet must be in good working order and connected to a sewerage or septic system.

The toilet must be in a separate room, either by itself or in an appropriate room like a bathroom or a combined bathroom–laundry.

Ventilation

All rooms must have adequate ventilation, including the bathroom, shower, toilet and laundry.

Vermin-proof bins

You must supply the renter with rubbish and recycling bins. Bins must be vermin-proof and meet council collection standards.

Windows

All external windows that people can open must have latches. The latches must secure the windows against outside entry. Windows that can open must also be able to be left in the open or closed position.

Window coverings

The property must have curtains or blinds in rooms used for living or sleeping. They must open and close, block light and maintain privacy.

Window covering anchors

All corded internal window coverings (such as blinds or curtains) must have an anchor installed to ensure the cords are secured or tensioned and can't form a loose loop.

If your property doesn't meet minimum standards

The minimum standards are mandatory.

Under the Residential Tenancies Act 1997, it is a criminal offence to let a new renter move into a rental property that does not meet minimum standards. Individuals can face maximum penalties of over $11,800, while companies face maximum fines of over $59,000.

If you do not repair the property

As a rental provider, you must make urgent repairs immediately.

If you don't take immediate action, renters may arrange urgent repairs themselves if they cost less than $2,500. You will then need to reimburse the renter.

Renters may also seek help from Victorian Civil and Administrative Tribunal (VCAT), which may arrange for them to put your rent money into a special account while waiting for you to organise repairs. This account holds their rent instead of giving it to you as their rental provider. After a certain time:

- If you arrange the repairs, you can ask VCAT to give you the rent from that account.
- If you haven't made the repairs and the property doesn't meet minimum standards, the renter can ask VCAT to repay to them some or all the rent from that account.

If you are finding it hard to make repairs due to financial hardship

Minimum standards for rental properties are mandatory in Victoria.

If you are finding it hard to afford to make repairs because of financial hardship, you will be required to provide VCAT with evidence.

If you are experiencing financial hardship, you can speak to a financial counsellor through the National Debt Helpline at ndh.org.au or call 1800 007 007.
